

AMENDMENT IN THE ABSTRACT

This invention relates to the embedding of a microelectronic chip into printed media, including but not limited to books and magazines. The microelectronic component is switched on by opening the printed medium or by triggering on an on/off mechanism. The invention may have various embodiments that can be used to project speech, music or other tonal signals upon operation.

RECEIVED
AUG 29 2003
TECHNOLOGY CENTER 2800